Railroads and Railroad Routes in Oregon

We are kindly permitted to make the following extracts from the forthcoming history of Oregon, in preparation for the press by Mrs. F. F. Victor:

RAILROADS AND RAILROAD ROUTES IN OREGON.

The great need of the Pacific coast is railroads. California has but two navigable rivers, both having the same outlet to the sea, the bay of San Francisco. Oregon has also two navigable rivers with one outlet, the mouth of the Columbia. Both States have large agricultural valleys, bounded east and west by mountain ranges. Both have a rich mineral State lying on their eastward boundary, and both have but one harbor of importance on their western coast. Both States are rugged and mountainous, making the business of freighting [illegible] and expensive.

The want of means of communication with central points retards the development of remote districts, rendering their products valueless while [illegible] the inhabitants to pay any price however exorbitant for the necessary comforts of life. It causes the population to collect together in towns, and neglect the country, and fills up the principal city of each State every winter, with the people from the mining districts, to the enrichment of that one city, and to the detriment of all other places generally.

As long as we have no railroads this state of affairs must continue in Oregon. In the Willamette Valley—the richest agricultural region west of the Rocky mountains, of so great an extent, with a navigable river flowing through it, and through the Columbia to the sea, even here the want of a railroad is seriously felt, from the fact that for a considerable portion of the year low water prevents the ascent of the river for nearly half the distance navigable in high water, and because the present freights, with no competition, put it out of the farmers' power to send wheat to market for foreign shipment except it is bringing an extraordinary price at home. The fruit crop, one of the principal products of Oregon, is, for the same reason unremunerative except in some favored localities, because fruit must have a quick and easy transportation to market, or it is unfit for use. The products of the dairy do not suffer in the same way, quite, but the farmer grows hopeless of profits from the many discouraging circumstances surrounding him, becomes indifferent, and finally only raises what grain he can consume, lets his orchard go to waste, neglects to keep up his cows, and contents himself with a little sheep-raising, wool being the lightest and the most profitable article he can take to market at twenty cents a pound. And this with a good demand for farm products in California, Vancouver's Island, the Sandwich Islands, and the mining territories on our eastern boundaries! To be sure, if he chance to be near any of the wagon routes to the mines, he can find a good market at the other end of that route, and his own price also, but here the miner suffers by paying all he can earn for these necessary and costly importations.

Mines of iron and copper, quarries of marble, springs of salt, forests of turpentine, rosin, tar and fuel, as well as other forests of lumber and mines of coal, lie idle and unclaimed because valueless on account of their remoteness from points of shipment to the proper market.

The cost of transporting mills and machinery of all kinds to the mining regions, from San Francisco or Portland is almost as great as that of the machinery itself. The prices of provisions in the mines, and the consequent high price of labor, absorb money very rapidly. In short a large amount of capital can be made to produce but slight results under these hindrances, and the development of the country is carried on by a slow and expensive process. A few monopolists realize immense fortunes, but the people and the country are made poor.

These are facts which every one is quite ready to acknowledge. The great question is, how are railroads to be built? Undoubtedly, we ought to have the assistance of Government, but a great deal might be done by private capital, and much assistance might be rendered by the people of Oregon themselves. Suppose that we insist upon a road from the bay of San Francisco to some point on the Columbia river! It is a long road—say six hundred miles. But look at the country it passes through—the Sacramento valley, the Rogue river, Umpqua and Willamette valleys. It taps the valley of the Columbia, a stream which drains nearly a dozen degrees of latitude and longitude, whose tributaries roll down their golden sands from mountains rich in mines of precious metals and base metals; it points to the Puget Sound country where it must finally extend, taking in the greatest lumbering region on this coast, coal mines and wheat lands, and uniting us with the best and largest natural naval depot in the world.

The road from the Bay of San Francisco to the Columbia river is not for its length, a costly road to build. Passes must be found through the mountains of Southern Oregon which will obviate heavy grading, for it is now well ascertained that the detached mountain spurs in this portion of the State stand upon a general level, and that by following the separating valleys, it is possible to pass around them, or, in some cases, to get more directly through by following passes made by streams. The greater portion of the distance is over level lands where there is neither clearing of timber nor any heavy grading to be done, and the mountains of Southern Oregon furnish fir, pine and cedar in abundance, both for its own section of the road and northern California.

The farmers of the Willamette Valley are able, and ought to be willing to help furnish the means for such road. Most of them own large tracts of land which they cannot cultivate profitably, nor at all, yet which are comparatively valueless to sell. If, out of their six hundred and twenty acres, or their two or three thousand acres, they were willing to donate a fifth or a tenth, to help build a road which should immediately advance the price of their remaining acres fifty to an hundred per cent, and give them a market and a paying price for their farm products, and settle up their neighborhoods so that common schools could flourish, the State would be greatly benefited by it, as well as themselves, and Oregon would advance at once to her proper place among the States. As for manufacturers, merchants and others, they have an interest with the farmer in securing so great a benefit to all classes of people.

The answer to an appeal to many Oregonians for help to build a railroad through the length of the State is: "We remember how Illinois encumbered herself with debt by attempting too much railroad in her youth." To these very objectors we only reply, Look at what Illinois is now, and ask yourselves what she would have been without her railroads. Besides there is more to build and to support a road in Oregon now, than there was in Illinois then. Taking California and Oregon together, they have about the same number of inhabitants that Illinois had when Congress in 1850 donated a munificent grant of land to the Central Railroad Company, which had a road to build of about the same length as the California and Oregon road. The road was built in six years, costing nearly $25,000,000. It had to depend on agricultural resources mainly, and to compete with two navigable rivers, a canal, and other railroads. Notwithstanding all this competition, that road earns annually one fourth of the cost of its construction, and it, with its rivals, so stimulated business and emigration that in ten years the population had more than doubled, and the value of its real estate had increased over three hundred per cent.

The western country where farm products were the highest [illegible] and where other neighboring States [illegible] the population and the [illegible]. But how is it with Oregon and California? From the very nature of the country through which the road must pass there can be no diversion of the trade and travel owing to the different points of rival routes. The only thing to be [illegible] railroad monopoly, growing out of this [illegible] there being but one route natural or necessary between those two important points. There will always be, however, the steamship line to compete in case of too heavy tariff.

Instead of competition from neighboring States, lines of railroad dividing the travel and freight to and from the two principal points on the coast, these same States all lying between us and the Rocky mountains must be tributary to us and must form a large support to this principal line, or main artery of commerce, which will soon have numerous branches from North, East, South, and even from the West, uniting the small ports along the coast with the interior.

Such is the natural and evident conclusion of the observer who will only carefully study the shape of the country as laid down in the map with more or less accuracy. There is another point, and by no means an insignificant one, to be considered by those interested in the settlement of Western Oregon. So far the approaches to Oregon have been either by the Overland route across weary stretches of plains, or over [illegible] of mountains, parched and burning [illegible] deserts, until at last the worn out emigrant reaches his land of Canaan, only to sink down on the first green spot that offered too exhausted to make another effort in all his life, and only caring to live in the easiest and most "shiftless" manner, thus furnishing Oregon with but a poor [illegible] at last; or, it has been by a tedious sea voyage and re-shipment at San Francisco, with a generally rough and disagreeable passage from that port to the mouth of the Columbia, then up the magnificent but yet solitary river a hundred miles to Portland, the largest but by no means the most attractive town in Oregon. Here he must [illegible] a very poor chance to gain an idea of the beauty or resources of the State, hemmed in as he is by fir covered hills. If he wishes to see what the State is like he must take a voyage up the Willamette, and hiring a horse set out on a pilgrimage in one or several directions from [illegible] several points, journeying thus until satisfied that he has seen Oregon—all of which is tedious and expensive—too much so for many who might be induced to select places for settlement could they have an opportunity of viewing the country under so favorable circumstances as those of a traveler in a comfortable railway carriage through a beautiful valley, everywhere fertile, with pleasant village stations all along to stop at for a day, with a certainty of being able to continue the journey at pleasure on the morrow.

More observations upon the resources of Oregon would be certain to be made in one year of railroad travel through the State than in five, or even ten, under the present order of things. Besides, first impressions go a great ways, and the approach to Western Oregon from the south, especially for the traveler from San Francisco, is the very best one that can be made. After passing over a long stretch of the sunburnt valley of the upper Sacramento, and the barren hills of northern California, he comes gradually upon greener pastures, and hills with picturesque groves of oak, then grander mountains and deeper forests, and greener valleys, each different from the other until he emerges at last from a long succession of beautiful scenes into the most beautiful one of all as he enters the head of the Willamette valley and glides northward for one hundred and twenty miles over green prairies and among golden grain fields to a point where a fine steamer awaits him, if his destination happens to be still farther on.

The railroad is a great educator. It scatters civilization and enlightenment all along its line. It wakens the sleepy echoes in the mountain solitudes, and thunders along the valleys with the latest news and the newest inventions. There can be no Rip Van Winkles within sound of the railroad whistle, the schoolmaster is sure to be abroad in that land over which the "resonant steam eagles" spread their wings.

"But," object some of those very Rip Van Winkles, "a railroad to San Francisco will only build up that city, and depopulate our own State. All our grain, and fruit, and produce of every sort, and manufactures will go right to San Francisco." Does it damage Chicago that grain goes from her market to that of New York? Chicago would be in a forlorn situation without New York. New York is far better off for the existence of Chicago. These matters regulate themselves satisfactorily. It is far better to have San Francisco wheat buyers coming up here to take your grain off your hands at a fair price, than to have your grain fields lying waste for want of purchasers. No matter where the produce goes to, if you get gold for it in sufficient amount to pay you for raising it. But that is your own lookout, too. The market for your produce exists east of the Cascades, to a great extent, and within your own boundaries. Your own merchants will see that San Francisco does not monopolize the trade in that direction. The Columbia river will always be the highway to the mining regions east of the mountains; and especially so if you build this road. Oregon merchants will then stand between San Francisco and the mines. If California means to compete she must build a branch road. But that road is open to you as well, and the advantage remains with you. It is useless to argue that it is too soon to build a railroad when the California line of steamers bring to Portland every month from eighteen to twenty hundred tons of freight at ten dollars per ton, besides that which comes in sailing vessels at seven dollars and fifty cents per ton. Much of the freight is reshipped up the valley at once, at a similar cost; much of it goes up the Columbia to the mines, at a cost of from three hundred and thirty, to four hundred and thirty dollars per ton, to the Boise and Owyhee countries, and much more to the mines on the Upper Columbia and in Montana. This is the carrying business in one direction only, with the passenger fares left out of the calculation. It is true there is not much freight coming down from the mines, but there will be more and more. The amount of treasure shipped by Wells, Fargo & Co., from Portland to San Francisco for the year ending Aug. 31, 1865, was $5,832,500, or nearly six millions of dollars. As much more probably came down from the mines in the hands of private individuals, making the transit of treasure through Portland about twelve millions yearly, with the mines yet in their infancy. There is an export business, constantly increasing, but not yet equal to the imports.

From what we have said it is easily deducible that there is a large amount of money daily expended in transportation of freights to, in and from Oregon. If there is all this money being expended now, with a continually growing trade and population, and the prospect of a tenfold increase in both, when a railroad shall have furnished facilities for trade and travel, there need be no fear about the receipts of the road when completed. Had Oregon a railroad stretching through the Willamette valley to-day she would be a more prosperous State than she is. Had she a railroad connecting the Willamette and Sacramento valleys, she would not now be deprived of her daily mail through demands, just or unjust of a California Stage Company. Until she does have one the effects of her isolated situation will be felt in a thousand ways, all telling upon the prosperity and intelligence of her people.

For this do her iron and coal mines wait, her manufactories, her common school system, her State societies and public institutions of every sort, and to all these improvements most desired and most desirable, a railroad project having in itself the assurance of speedy consummation would prove the open sesame. It is very common to talk as if Oregon must wait for the Pacific Railroad before commencing the work of building her own roads. What inducement does she hold out for the rapid completion of the great railroad across the continent which is to open to her the door to China and Japan? Does she expect that either public or private capital is going to be wasted building ten or fifteen hundred miles of road through an uninhabited country with no promise of anything at the end of it? Shall Oregon wait to be developed by the Pacific Railroad, or should she set earnestly to work to develop her own resources, and thus invite and secure the early completion of that road which is to place her within one week's travel of the great cities of the Eastern States? Why not enrich herself manufacturing iron for the use of railroad companies? Locomotives are now being built in California, and they can be built in Oregon out of native metals. What more profitable business could capitalists engage in than that of converting native ore into all the various kinds of machinery need in a mining country. A few well directed enterprises of this kind would not only make the building of a road profitable to the State, but would furnish something for it to do when it was built. Other roads would start from territories east of us either to connect with the Columbia river or with the main road through the valley, and thus furnish links in the great Pacific road. California is building railroads rapidly. She will go out to meet the great highway and bring it to her doors with welcome. She will show herself fruitful in expedients and full of energy while Oregon stands with a sullen resignation, helplessly regarding the opportunity lost. It is useless to assert the barren fact that Oregon is a better State than California, but when some practical demonstration of her merits has been made there will be no need of assertion; the facts will prove themselves. It will be a promising day for her when she opens her first ten miles of railroad in the Willamette valley, and the beginning of a new era in her history.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE

WEDNESDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 11, 1865.

Changing Base

Our Victoria neighbors have found after a six years' reliance on a single resource, that it is necessary for them to change their base and lend to the development of industrial pursuits. The lesson taught by the course of our cousins is well worth the attention of those Oregonians who seem disposed to rely upon the single thread system of doing business. The Colonist of September 10th has the following pertinent introductory on the subject, written on the inspiration of a well timed article showing the fact, that while commerce is suffering the depression it is in Victoria, Nanaimo presented more flourishing indications than it had ever displayed before. The Colonist says:

> The contrast here afforded explains more forcibly than we can well say the folly of staking our all on the single turn up of the uncertain die of Cariboo, and proves, what we have all along maintained, the advantage of having more stable occupations in the country than gold mining and commission agencies. We cannot of course turn Victoria into a coal mining community if nature has not given us the mineral; but we can at least, by following out a policy more in accordance with our position, enable the country to sustain without material injury any reverse which an insufficient yield of gold may occasion. From first to last, from the exposition which we gave in January of the falling off of our trade till the present time—we never for a moment blamed the mistaken commercial policy of the country for the reaction that had taken place, because as the success of gold mining was the cause of our sudden prosperity, so the temporary decline of the mines was the cause of the commercial depression; but we did blame it for its total unseaworthiness when the storm set in. With the partial failure of Cariboo came a number of unemployed men, and even unemployed capital, but there was no outlet for either. We had tied ourselves down to selling pork and beans, and when the mouths decreased in number we were left helpless either with large stocks in hand or large debts that were not likely to become remunerative. The "bone and sinew" had to depart, and the present year witnessed a very considerable diminution in the numbers that went to Cariboo. Now in any other country this would have been sufficient lesson to those who had a commercial interest at stake. The commercial portion of the population would have seen that a policy which was only safe in fair weather was not suited to a colony subject to all the ups and downs of a gold mining life; but our mercantile men were hopeful and expected geographical positions to work some of the biblical miracles. The miracles however have not been performed, and no men have suffered more by our commercial policy than those who have clung to it in sunshine and adversity, with all the ardor of unsophisticated youth.

To make up for past deficiencies, which seems in these days to be a common desire on the part of losers, the attention of the Victoria people has been directed to the coal deposits, and they are reminded that while men are shaking their heads despondingly, a fleet of vessels are awaiting their slow turn at Nanaimo to ship their cargoes of the mineral wealth abounding in the country. The Colonist uses some plain language—in the next paragraph we find the following:

> While coal is to be found in the vicinity of nearly every bay or estuary along the coast, and while a market is open to us at our very doors, commerce shrugs its shoulders and looks infatuatingly towards the deceptive strata of Williams creek. In what other country could we find such absolute supineness. Here is Nanaimo called upon to fill orders for 7,000 tons of coal, and some of the vessels will be actually obliged to wait over six weeks for their cargoes, and yet with all this demand for the produce of labor, we have stalwart men walking the streets, unable to obtain a day's work! And this is the delightful result of that "commercial policy" that has been telling every industry to look not beyond the marvellous city of Victoria for its sustenance. Had the mercantile class, who really controlled the destiny of the colony, shown that clear-sightedness which, in other countries is its peculiar characteristic, we should have had to-day a dozen Nanaimo's, and work for all the men whom gold mining misfortune had turned adrift.

The commerce of Vancouver Island has most undoubtedly been neglected, and the true interests now being developed will be likely to greatly redeem her credit. In such cases it is correct to state the class of persons financiering, and we learn from the paper before us that it is to another class than those of former years that they are already indebted for the absorption of a considerable number of men out of the unemployed population. Discoveries of coal in other portions of the country are being turned to good account, and companies are intent on bringing the article into market as speedily as possible.

This a subject well worthy the attention of our own people. Here we have iron, coal, salt, and probably every element of wealth that can be named, yet are not our people relying too much upon one branch of business? Why is it that vessels coming to this port are oftentimes of late, compelled to take their departure with barley sufficient cargo for ballast? unless it is for the reason that our saw-mills are not able to supply the demand for lumber, or that our farmers are not able to get their products to market.

It is shown that the Nanaimo coal mines furnish to Victoria a large proportion of the fuel used in that city. In the month of June the total amount shipped from the mine was 2,819 tons, out of which California took 1,805 tons, and Victoria the remainder. In July there was but 1,877 tons shipped, out of which California took 605 tons; Behring Straits 150 tons. In August the amount had increased to 4,263 tons, of which Portland took 105 tons, Sitka 295, and San Francisco 2,443. In the last month a considerable increase will be observed, and it is thought the present month will show a wonderful augmentation.

Thus it will be seen the coal trade of the island promises well. The coal of Oregon is proven good, is adapted to burning on steamers and in grates, and we trust before long will form an important feature of the commerce of the State. There being no duty to pay on coal from the Columbia river, and its being useful for many purposes, renders it quite certain that an export demand would soon follow the opening of the mines. But not alone in coal should we like to see the resources of this section of the State developed.

"Dook" Gwin.—It appears that the self-made dignitary of imaginary titles has at last reached the end of his tether. The "Duke," like Mason, Breckinridge, and the rest of his traitor countrymen, didn't relish the idea of being perpetually excluded from the United States. This thought, as Hamlet says, was wormwood to him. Hearing that pardons were being dispensed at Washington with a prodigal hand, His Grace, the regal Duke of Sonora, determined to pay his addresses to the plain republican court of President Johnson and with an air of injured innocence and of indignant hauteur befitting his ducal rank, ask the Executive to do himself and his high office the great honor of pardoning the man who has been an intimate friend of the Emperor's. But alas! for the result. The moment the "Duke" touches the soil of the Republic he is arrested and thrown into prison. Pardons are not so plenty as he had hoped to find them. Nor does our Government stand in awe of his name and titles. So the "Duke" subsides and if he finds a place of refuge he will find it in his own littleness. No more will he be made the subject of special telegraphic notoriety. He is stripped of his titles and shorn of his glory. His dukedom is at an end. Would that we might have the happiness of recording that his days were now also fully numbered. The people of America would gladly join in uttering a hearty farewell to that "poor shadow, painted king"—His Mightiness of Sonora.

What Does It Mean? Late dispatches from the East announce that the number of vessels in the United States Pacific Squadron is to be considerably increased. We are to have a much larger fleet of war vessels in those waters than has ever been here before. We may very naturally inquire whether this is not a precautionary measure of our Government, in view of a possible rupture with France upon the Mexican question. There is no employment here at present for the naval force which is to be sent to this coast, but if war should arise with the power we have mentioned, these vessels would be in the very place where they could render most efficient service against the upstart Emperor who remains in Mexico merely to execute the behests of the despotic magnate who rules over the "great nation" simply because his uncle was a great man.

The Blairs.—The most blatant of the Blairs—Montgomery—is a candidate for Congress in Maryland and has recently made a speech in which he coarsely assails Secretaries Seward and Stanton and Judge Holt, accusing them of disloyalty to the Union.

The speech in question is one of the worst types of the disease with which the Blair family is afflicted. It is the old story of Mordecai sitting at the king's gate. The speaker is as bold as a highwayman and strikes his blows with the [illegible] of an assassin. But these gentlemen do not need to be defended, or in the end handed as valiant. Their names and fame are the property and in the keeping of a grateful country. We have reason to know of the faithful services of Messrs. Stanton and Holt at the most critical period in our history. Our cotemporary of the Chicago Evening Journal well expresses our views in regard to them that we adopt its language as our own.

> The truth is that during the whole of those dark and threatening days which attended the conclusion of the last Democratic Administration, the republic was saved by the efforts of Edwin M. Stanton, Joseph Holt and John A. Dix. With a courage, a devotion, a pertinacity, and a resolution that never faltered in the midst of appalling dangers and difficulties, these three patriots and statesmen were always true. Whether the duty was to manage the imbecility of a President whose cold heart had sympathies were all with treason, or to resist with open defiance the maddened conspirators of the South, there never was an hour, never a moment in which those three faithful Americans proved recreant to their great historic trust. To Mr. Stanton especially the gratitude of the American people is due. But it is due to them all. The country and the world will not be held from doing justice to their inestimable services by all the calumnies that partisan ingenuity can invent or that individual malice can breathe.
> As for Mr. Seward, we shall not say a word in his defense. It is not necessary. He no longer stands in the category of those public men whose past actions are to be raked over to find matter for impeachment. The people regard him with peculiar affection. Associated in the martyrdom of the late President, we all thank God that he has escaped the fearful blow and still remains a member of the Executive Government. Serving his country with submissive calmness in the midst of public calamities, personal injuries and domestic afflictions, all alike without parallel, he can well afford to look with his usual cheerful indifference upon this last onslaught of a personal and political foe. The statesman whom Providence has rescued from the murderous dagger of Payne can not be much endangered by the flimsy stiletto of Mr. Montgomery Blair.—Chicago Evening Journal, September 14.

Commenting on the Wirtz trial, the N. Y. Post says:

> The testimony against the man Wirtz is accumulating at a fearful rate. Not only the Union prisoners at Andersonville testify to his frightful cruelties had declared. Thus, one James Mahan who was yesterday examined, declared that he, as a rebel subordinate official, took thirteen Federal prisoners to a blacksmith's shop to have iron collars and chains fastened on them. Calvin Honeyduth saw Wirtz shoot a sick man for not starting up on the line. Capt. J. Heath saw Wirtz set the hounds on a fugitive. All these witnesses were in the rebel service. The public feeling against the Andersonville jailor is increasing in intensity day by day. The refusal of the Swiss Consul at Washington to act as his banker for the sums which may be sent in to aid his defence, has attracted some attention. In view of the Consul's official capacity, and the nationality of the accused man, it would not have seemed so much out of place had he accepted the temporary commission. The public will look with curiosity to see what testimony Wirtz can bring to bear against the great weight of evidence that is crushing him to the earth. It is understood that the Military Commission will give him every needful chance to exculpate himself if he can. The witnesses in his behalf will receive a courteous hearing.

The Last Resting-place of Lincoln.—The Springfield, Ill., Journal says:

> We had the opportunity a few days since of examining the plan and drawing made by L. D. Cleaveland, architect, of the tomb proposed to be built at Oak Ridge Cemetery, to receive the remains of the late President Lincoln. The mausoleum, if built in accordance with the plan furnished by Cleaveland, will be a beautiful structure, and is to be placed a short distance from the proposed monument. In size it will be 20½ feet by 15½ feet on the ground, 9 feet in height to the cornice and 20 feet to the apex of the roof, finished with four winged buttresses surmounted with gothic pinnacles, which are connected with the roof by "flying" buttresses. A room 8 by 10 on the ground, and 11½ feet in height is to be finished with "grained" arches in the front part of the structure for a chapel. In the rear of this room will be twelve catacombs for depositing the dead. The door will be of iron, with open panels at the top for ventilation. The walls of the structure are to be of finished stone and the floor of polished marble. We understand that the above plan has been presented for the consideration of the Directors of the Monument Association, but has not yet been acted upon.

The following State ticket was nominated at the late "Democratic" Convention in New York. The Post says it is about the first instance ever known where a party has selected its candidates from the ranks of its opponents. Here is the ticket:

Secretary of State, Major-General Henry W. Slocum; Comptroller, Lucius Robinson; Canal Commissioner, Cornelius W. Armstrong; Attorney General, John Van Buren; State Treasurer, Gen. Marsena R. Patrick; State Engineer, S. H. Street; Inspector of State Prisons, Andrew J. McNett; Clerk of the Court of Appeals, F. O. Perrine; Judge of the Court of Appeals (long term), John W. Brown; Judge of the Court of Appeals (short term), Martin Grover.

Robert E. Lee Playing the Historian.—Richmond, (Va.,) September 1.—Gen. Robert E. Lee, the rebel chieftain, has within a few days practically set about the task of writing a history of the war. The forthcoming work will doubtless be written from the rebel stand point, and in this view will constitute an exceedingly valuable contribution to the historical literature of the country. General Lee is living in great quiet and humility on an obscure and well nigh inaccessible farm, the property of a friend in Cumberland county, Va. His sons and a nephew, with slight aid comparatively, have raised a magnificent crop of corn on the White House farm.

Early on Rebel Chaplains.—During the fight at Fisher's Hill, at which the Federal troops were victorious, the rebel General Jubal Early, in riding to the front, met a man pitching towards the rear. Early accosted him thus:

"Who are you, and where are you going?"

"I am a chaplain going to the rear," replied the fugitive.

"Yes, confound you," said Early, "you have been wanting to go to heaven for some time, and now you've got a chance you run away."

Resumption of the Daily Mail.—Agent Whitehouse, of the California Stage Company, yesterday received a dispatch authorizing the carrying of the Daily Overland Mail to California by the coaches of the company. We are not advised as to the particulars, but understand the Government have finally made a satisfactory arrangement, and the mails go forward this morning and for the time hence as formerly.

General Hood.—Since this ex-General was so badly whipped by Thomas he has been pretty nearly lost sight of, but the San Antonio (Texas) Herald of a date in August announces his arrival there, saying: "He is considerably mangled, but feels somewhat compensated on account of his loss of a leg relieving him from the rheumatism."

The Montana Post has commenced the publication of the proceedings of the Vigilantes in that Territory. It will extend through a series of numbers, and gives promise of being a most interesting work. He proposes to give a plain unvarnished matter of fact history of their career from their earliest existence.

The election from Montana, we learn by the Post, resulted in the election of the entire Democratic ticket, some precincts were not heard from, but, go as they may, the result will remain a Democratic majority.

Notice

To the Tax-Payers of Multnomah Co.

UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE LAWS NOW in force relating to the collection of taxes, all taxes are required to be paid on or before the 1st day of February of each year. If not paid by that time, all real estate with taxes not paid thereon, will be immediately advertised and sold to satisfy said taxes at the expense of the owner thereof, and personal property will be levied upon immediately after the expiration of thirty days from the time of my visit to the precinct for the purpose of collecting taxes.

I will therefore, in pursuance of law, meet the tax payers of Multnomah County at their respective places of voting, in each precinct on the following days, to wit:

East Portland, Wednesday, October 25th.
Multnomah, Thursday, October 26th.
Millsmont, Friday, Oct. 27th.
Sandy, Saturday, October 28th.
Powell's Valley, Monday, October 30th.
St. Johns, Tuesday, October 31st.
Sauvie's Island, Wednesday, November 1st.
North Portland, Thursday, November 2d.

And at the Court House in South Portland Precinct on any day from the 10th day of October until the first day of February next. I will be there promptly from 9 A. M. until 4 P. M. on the days named.

JACOB STITZEL,
Sheriff of Multnomah County, Oregon.

For the Benefit of the Public

A fact which merits the attention of every philanthropist and sympathizer with human sufferers.

The disease which raged within my system for nearly two years, precipitating and hurrying me to an early grave, was pronounced by every physician that I had [illegible] to be a cancer of the upper part of my chest and an inflammatory swelling in the bone. Daily, accompanied by agonizing and excruciating pain, sleepless nights and general restlessness and debility, and in spite of all the treatment I received of the eminent and most approved physicians, slight relief [illegible] was all the relief I obtained, but the pain always returned with double vigor and fury, the cancer progressing daily, and eating its way inwardly and exposing the [illegible] of the collar and breast bones, which made me despair and surrender all hopes of recovery. [illegible] totally removed and radically cured by the newly-arrived Dr. N. DAVIDSOHN, who to his skill [illegible] and confidence and whom I think to be the only one who deserves it, for besides his medical skill, which has been tested on several occasions, to be of a superior grade, his kind, faithful and sincere attendance inspires every hopeless heart with cheerfulness and charming prospects of delivery.

I therefore feel it a solemn human duty to give the matter publicity that many other sufferers might enjoy the same opportunity with the same happy results as I did.

MRS. A. KUBLER,
Corner of First and Mill Streets.

Was awarded to

NICOLAS LUMSDEN,

Of Portland,

FIRST PREMIUM ON BOOTS!

HE TAKES THIS OPPORTUNITY TO INFORM his friends and the public generally, that he is prepared to make to order, in the latest style, French Double Sole, Cork Sole, Water Proof Boots, Pump, Channel [illegible] and Welt Dress Boots.

He would also recommend the French Double Inseamed Cork Sole, [illegible] those afflicted with Rheumatism, or [illegible] during the rainy season in Oregon. And the Pump Boots to those wishing to trip the light fantastic toe.

If any want a fit of wear,
Just call at Lumsden's shop;
For all the money he will not spare
To please his friends who stop.

And if you wish more ease on earth,
Your modest [illegible] him get—
Now call and hold your money's worth
He is the man, you bet!

He makes the Pump, the Opera Boot,
The Wellington and Cossack;
The Cork and Buckskin, he can cut,
And also make them quick.

The Roman sandal he can make,
Or lady's slipper either;
For all his genius is awake
In making Boots of Leather.

DATES TO OCTOBER 9.

Eastern Trade Report.

NEW YORK, Oct. [illegible] [illegible] with [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] along [illegible] the market of provisions. European [illegible] all we can supply with contracts made up to January. Breadstuffs are firmer with an increased demand from England. Winter wheat is scarce and wanted. Hides are moderately active at good prices with a very large stock on hand. Wool is in better request with heavy sales. [illegible] being held at [illegible] The importations of foreign goods are unusually large. Holders asking very full prices.

[illegible] of the Foreign Exchange [illegible] at 110. Money easy and abundant on call.

The California Battalion.

NEW YORK, Oct. [illegible] The battalion raised in California which was attached to the Massachusetts quota, is now to be paid in full, but the paymasters are required to keep separate accounts of the travel pay and subsistence allowed, amounting to about three hundred dollars for each man in order that the account may be presented to Massachusetts for reimbursement, to the U. S. Treasury.

Restoration of Property—More Pardons.

A special dispatch to the Herald dated Washington Oct. 4th says that the Freedmen's Bureau has recently restored large amounts of property [illegible] in the adjoining counties of Virginia which had previously been held by the Bureau. Numerous applications continue to be made for the restoration of property.

Eighty five pardon warrants were signed by the President this morning. None of them included any names of prominence. The parties receiving them reside in Alabama, Virginia and North Carolina.

Ex-Governor Clark Released.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The Post's Washington special dispatch says the President has ordered the release of Ex-Governor Clark of Mississippi, who has been imprisoned for some months at Fort Pulaski.

NEW YORK, October 5.—The Post's Washington special says ex rebel General Pillow arrived here to-day.

Elections in Mississippi and Virginia.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The Herald's Jackson, Mississippi, dispatch of October 5th, says Gen. Humphreys has been chosen Governor. Governor Sharkey will use every endeavor to have his application for pardon granted. Humphreys' success is considered unfortunate by the best Union men here.

Walker is doubtless elected Attorney General of Virginia.

Fenians in New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. [illegible]th.—The Central Council of the Fenian Brotherhood now in session at the Astor House in this city have called a special General Congress of the entire organization in the United States to meet in Philadelphia on Monday the 16th of October.

Neutrality in Mexican Affairs.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6th.—It is certain that Government has taken no recent action, nor is it believed any is contemplated inconsistent with the policy heretofore declared—the maintenance of absolute neutrality between the belligerents in Mexico.

The Russian Telegraph.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Minister Clay has transmitted to the State Department a copy of the conditions and stipulations between the Russian Telegraph Department and Hiram Sibley for the establishment of telegraphic communication between Russia and America. The exclusive right is granted to the latter, the plenipotentiary of the Western Union Telegraph Company for thirty three years from the day the line shall be opened. The Russian Government is to grant further time as it may judge convenient. In order to further the undertaking, Government allows 40 per cent on the proceeds on dispatches transmitted by it over the line to and from America, and in order to contribute as much as possible to the success of the present undertaking, the Minister of Public Duties will adopt the measures necessary for securing the telegraph from being maliciously injured by local populations; but at the same time the Government refuses to take upon itself any responsibility for such injuries of any nature whatever. The company is allowed to import materials free of duty.

Washington News—Attempt of Dr. Mudd to Escape.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The Post's Washington special dispatch says General Grant and staff arrived yesterday. The ex rebel General Imboden is here. His pardon is believed to be doubtful. The office of Provost Marshal in Washington was abolished to-day.

The steamship Daniel Webster, from New Orleans Sept. 22d, reports the landing of some prisoners at Dry Tortugas.

Dr. Mudd, the assassin, in an attempt to escape, was found secreted in the coal bunkers of the steamer Thomas Scott and put to hard labor wheeling sand. The Quartermaster of the Scott was arrested for aiding Mudd in his effort to escape.

Address of Gen. Howard.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The Herald's Washington special dispatch says that Gen. Howard entertained four or five hundred ladies and gentlemen with a miscellaneous address at the Union League Rooms to-night. A statement was read by proxy from Gen. Butler who was expected to be present, giving his primary views upon reconstruction. He favored the confiscation of all Southern lands traveled over by our armies, and colonizing them with discharged soldiers. He anticipated that the first call for help from the country will be from slave holders rather than Freedmen, and intimated that in such a case Massachusetts would not be among the last of the States in furnishing assistance.

Amnesty Pardons—The Army.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5th.—The President granted fifty eight amnesty pardons to-day, forty one of which were for Virginians. Among the more important applications lately filed are those of Gen. Peck, Col. Ould, Commissioner of exchange, and Watts, Attorney General of the late rebel Confederacy.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6th.—The Times says we have ascertained on official authority the number of pardons up to and including the warrants this day is 2,[illegible]9. The most notable of those lately pardoned is L. P. Walker, first rebel Secretary of War, who gave orders to fire on Fort Sumter. It is proper to state that Cabinet Ministers have declined to recommend the pardon of excepted classes—those coming under the 13th exception and the Twenty Thousand Dollar clause.

The Secretary of War has before him a communication, signed by prominent Senators and Representatives in Congress from all the States, earnestly protesting against the mustering out of all the twenty five regiments of veteran reserves now in service. They ask that if it is intended to reduce the Army to the consistency of a peace establishment, the veteran forces now scattered throughout the country and anxious to be mustered out be disposed of first, thus leaving in the service only the Regular Army and the Veteran Reserves, which combined, amount to fifty seven regiments, most of those regiments need recruiting. They also ask that permission be granted to the Veteran Reserves to recruit their regiments up to the full number. It is urged as one of the reasons for retaining these troops that most of them received during the late war such bodily injuries as unfit them for ordinary business vocations and as they promptly and practically volunteered to put down the rebellion at its commencement, they should be retained in the service. Secretary Stanton holds the matter under advisement, and will consult with General Grant on his return to the city.

Federal Appointments—Freedmen Affairs.

WASHINGTON, Oct. [illegible].—Bonds have been executed and approved in the following cases of newly appointed disbursing agents: Joseph Cushman, of Olympia, Washington Territory, and Henry Warren, of Oregon City, Oregon. The last named agency is designated as a United States Depository.

The Herald's special dispatch says in regard to Freedmen Affairs, one of the Assistant Commissioners who has just completed a tour through Western Alabama reports the negroes are in the main industriously at work but the crops are poor, and it is thought that they will not be sufficient to sustain the population. The greater part of the inhabitants are indisposed to co-operate with the Freedmen's Bureau officers, and refuse to consider the results of war as decisive. It is declared that there is but little loyalty among the whites, and they regard the oath of allegiance as a mock cry to be broken whenever convenient. The returned rebel soldiers are men who, however, are exceptions in these respects.

The Cholera—General News.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—The American Consul at Barcelona, Spain, states that the Cholera is increasing. A royal decree has been issued suspending business.

The United States Consul at Port Mahon, under date of September 17th says: The cholera at Majorca carried off many people, but there is a diminution of the disease. The cholera had also appeared at Ventera. About seventy persons died of cholera at Port Mahon. The cholera is reported to have broken out west of [illegible] for the scourge appears to [illegible] channels of human travel [illegible] commerce. No information has been received that it has appeared in the interior of Spain. [illegible] states that from information received [illegible] the scourge will visit the west. Information has been received here that the Bubonic plague which was thought to have disappeared, has again broken out in Siberia. The accounts of this pest are in form awful beyond anything heretofore given.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The Tribune's Washington says: The Washington Military Department has been abolished by order of the Secretary of War.

Contracts for important mail routes in the [illegible] Arkansas and Louisiana were awarded to-day.

From Tennessee.

NASHVILLE, Oct. 5th.—The papers in the case of Champ Ferguson have been forwarded to the President for approval or rejection.

In the Legislature to-day Wines of Montgomery county presented a memorial from the people of his county, suggesting measures to relieve the financial embarrassments of the people. He proposed to withhold execution until planters could derive the proceeds of two or three years' crops or stay the sale of property not bringing two thirds of its assessed value or allow two or four years for the redemption by defendant, on payment of principal and six per cent interest. The memorial was referred to the committee on judiciary.

The Methodist Conference is still in session at Edgar. Many eminent divines are in attendance.

Canadian Affairs—The Fenians.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The Herald's Toronto correspondent notices a significant speech by the Canadian Attorney General McDonald. He said Ottawa [illegible] long will be the metropolis of one third of the American continent and the capital of all the British North American provinces, which the British Government and Canadian authorities have determined shall be united in one grand confederation in spite of all opposition and before another year has passed.

It is said John C. Breckinridge proposes to become a British subject and enter into the pork business.

Nova Scotia papers of the 25th ultimo announce the arrival of Sir Fenwick Williams, lately commanding in chief of the British forces in Canada. Gen. Williams has been sent out to assume the management of Nova Scotia which hitherto has obstinately refused to see the desirability of a confederation.

The Fenians are creating a stir in Canada. Agents of the organization here recently visited Quebec and Ottawa with a view to establishing lodges. It is reported that members of the Brotherhood have recently left Toronto on a special mission to Ireland.

Burying the Dead

Come boys let us bury our dead together
Let us bury our dead together,
The battle field is clear and the battle is over
And it's a beautiful sunshiny weather

The there they lie like brothers asleep
Together, like brothers asleep
You can hardly distinguish the blue from the gray
In this bloody immortal heap

Look here is a Yankee and here is a "Reb"
With their hands [illegible] in each other's
Though [illegible]
[illegible]

And here is a Yankee and here is a Reb
And between them a can of stale water
As if the last one giving the other a drink
In the midst of the terrible slaughter

Ah war is a wonderful leveler boys
No matter who's who, Death outflanked him,
And now, you poor fellow with head in the dit[illegible]
Is as good as the man that outranked him

And war is a wonderful thing anyway
And a curious method of righting
A wrong [illegible] make sensible fellows like us
Settle questions of state by hard fighting

But that's the way all the world over, my boys
Yes that's the way all the world over;
So let us be lambs—now the wolf is well gorged—
And go back to the fields and the clover

Ah never mind, now, if you fought right or wrong—
Thank God we are once more together
One country between us and our flag above
Floating free in this sunshiny weather

So boys let us bury our dead together,
Let us bury our dead together,
And with them we'll bury unkindness and strife
And be friends now this sunshiny weather

JEFF DAVIS IN LONDON.—The present American correspondent of the London Times has sent an extraordinary letter to that paper, where it appears on the 4th of August. The letter is dated at Saratoga, and is devoted to a most stinging exposition of the hideous crimes of the Rebel chief toward the prisoners at Andersonville and elsewhere. This communication must produce a profound impression in England, and do much to revolutionize public sentiment there in regard to the real conduct of the Rebels. The writer says, that the desire to punish Davis "is not so unreasonable as it looks at a distance." He adds:

"Not only can it be explained, but justified. It does not arrive from any party passion, but from the remembrance of deeds which are more horrible than the English public can have any idea of, and it is constantly fed by new proofs of barbarity perpetrated upon Federal prisoners.

"The evidence upon which the charges of cruelty rest is overwhelming and unanswerable. A sanitary commission was appointed by the Government to inquire into the circumstances, and the members of it examined a great many men who had been prisoners in the South, some of whom were at death's door when they told their story. The testimony has been published by official sanction, and photographs of a few of the prisoners are prefixed to the narrative. Photographs do not lie, and these pictures of living skeletons, covered with horrible sores and wounds, speak for themselves. But still more painful witnesses against the Prisons of the South are to be met with in almost every village in the presence of poor young fellows who have returned in a state of idiocy, or paralysed or eaten up with scurvy. The evidence, as I have said, is before the world, the Southern leaders do not attempt to contradict it. They only say they did, as well as they could, and all one's wishes and hopes would lead one to believe them. But here again, unfortunately, the evidence is too strong in disproof of their words. The prisoners died from hunger in the sight of plenty. The Southern defence is that this was a retaliatory measure, used because there had been a complaint about the treatment of the Southern men in the North. But it is proved beyond all doubt—and every Confederate soldier, private or officer, who is questioned on the subject admits it—that in Northern prisons no distinction whatever was made between Federal and Confederate, both were carefully looked after, and always had proper clothing and food."

For this truthful statement the American people will be duly grateful. The English public [illegible] this impartial confirmation of an ugly fact.

THE GREAT BRIDGE AT CINCINNATI.—The immense and massive stone-work of the piers of this magnificent structure, which is soon to span the Ohio river and unite the two States, is about completed. We understand that in two weeks a foot-bridge, for the use of the workmen only, will be thrown across the river on wire ropes, and about one month from that time they commence stretching the wires for the main cables. They are receiving the wire for the latter as fast as possible.

The main bridge will be suspended on two wire cables, each of which will be thirteen inches in diameter. The cables will be made by stretching one wire across at a time until the whole number required are in place, and then the machines will be brought into requisition to twist them together. The iron saddle plates, on which the cables will rest on the tops of the piers, are now ready, and weigh nine tons each.

The span of the bridge is 1,057 feet, being about 200 feet longer than Niagara suspension bridge, and longer than any wire suspension bridge in the world. About 5,000 tons of wire will be used in constructing it. The distance from the foundation to the top of the piers is two hundred feet, and from the floor of the bridge to the top of the piers 110 feet. The floor of the bridge, when the river is at its present stage, will be 90 feet from the water, and will be 10 feet higher at the center than at either pier. The latter are built of solid masonry, and is [illegible], at the foundation, 86 by 50 feet, decreasing until reaching the top, where the measurement is 70 by 36 feet. As many workmen as can be used are employed, but notwithstanding all this, the bridge will not be ready for public transit short of one year. The spans from the piers to the anchorage are 280 feet.

COMPLEXION OF THE LEGISLATURE.—The Call has the following figures as to the political complexion of the California Legislature:

The political complexion of the Assembly stands—Regular Union, 51; Independent Union, 11; Democrats, 18. Regular Union majority over all, 22.

The Senate stands Regular Union, 20, Independent Union, 6; Democrats, 8. Regular Union majority over all, 12. Regular Union majority on joint ballot, 34. Last year the Democrats had 5 in the Senate and 9 in the House. Democratic gain in both branches, 12—3 in the Senate and 9 in the Assembly. We class as Independent Union Senators all the three hold-overs from this city, elected by the People's party, and the Senators elect from Amador, Solano and Sacramento.

LOOK OUT FOR GOOSE LAKE.—The Yreka Journal says the waters of the Sacramento are likely to have an addition ere long from those of Goose Lake, on the northern border of the State. It adds:

"This lake in the eastern part of the county, is very high, and constantly rising every year. The cause of its rise cannot be accounted for, but if it continues to rise at the same rate it will be but a few years more when it will be running into Pit river. It now lacks about thirty feet of running over the dividing ridge. It is a very large lake, and the water as clear as crystal.

THE NEXT CONGRESS.—The next Congress will be composed as follows: Union Representatives from the loyal States, including Kentucky, 147; Copperheads from the same 40. Union men from the State of Tennessee, 5, Copperhead, 3. If all the Southern States are allowed Representatives they will add 59 votes to the Copperhead strength in the House, if but the parties will be divided as follows: Union 152, Copperheads, including Tennessee, 41. Union majority, 109.

ERRORS ABOUT PARDONS.—A Washington correspondent says: It is untrue as stated in some of the newspapers, that the President has granted pardons to Gideon J. Pillow, late in the rebel army; A. O. P. Nicholson ex United States Senator and at one time editor of the Washington Union and William Williams A. Scroggs and C. F. Lucky of Tennessee, and ex Governor Aiken of South Carolina. These applications have not been acted on by the President.

It is related of Simon Cameron that, in talking to Jeff Davis about secession in 1860 he told Davis that if the Southern States seceded ruin would follow them, slavery abolished and would with his own hands plant corn in the streets of Charleston. Last spring Mr. Cameron planted the corn in Charleston as he predicted, hired a soldier to attend to it, and has lately received four ears of grain as the product.

WILL REST BESIDE HIS SONS.—The remains of Samuel Woodworth, the renowned poet and author of "The Old Oaken Bucket," arrived in this city by the ship Orpheus on the 21st inst. and will be interred beside those of his sons, Frederick and Samuel H., the remains of the latter having accompanied those of the father.—S. F. Bulletin.

"Want to see Grant mighty bad, do you?" said a blue coated veteran to the people crowding aboard the cars the other morning, on their way to get a squint of our favorite general. "W-a-all, why in thunder didn't you come down to the front, when he wanted to see you."

UNSUBJUGATED FEMALE REBELS.—If dignity, grace, intelligence and refinement of the Southern rebel women as a class—or of [illegible] such of them as have, from patriotic ardor, been subjected to association with the defeated Yanks—are matters of such common notoriety that one is surprised, horrified and utterly amazed at the ungallantry of the writer of the following which is found in the correspondence from Chattanooga:

The women of the South are the meanest rebels I have ever met, and when we consider that Don Quixotism is a component part of a Southerner's composition this fact carries weight with it. One of them with whom I entered into conversation at the hotel, said: "You wooden nutmeg Yankees don't understand the people if you think they are subjugated and that they will submit to tyranny like a poodle pup, licking the hand that smites them. Our men treasure these things up, and when opportunity offers, they will wipe out the taint of wounded honor with blood. I am now a worse secessionist than ever, and only regret that I could not have done more for the glorious Southern cause." At this she pulled from her reticule a "special pardon" for her husband who had been a guerrilla, and an order for the release of his property. She had just returned from Washington City. Another little vixen sneeringly remarked: "You Yankees feel very proud of your victories, won by dirty Dutch and Irish hirelings and negroes, and your officers ride through our country in special trains. [illegible] some of them will run off the track one of these days, and send some of you to hell, where you ought to be," and she drew a sigh of relief and commenced dipping snuff. Another said she could smell a greasy mechanic from the North across the room and asked me whether I was a blacksmith or bricklayer. I told her I was neither. "Well, then I'll bet my life (how reckless they are of that commodity) that you are a speculator, quack doctor or newspaper reporter." I bade her good evening and retired to dream of the beauties of Southern society.

THE ATLANTIC STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY.—The Atlantic Steam Navigation Company have established an agency in this city, appointing Mr. Lewis Schumacher, an old and well known citizen of San Francisco, Resident Agent. We regard this as a matter of considerable importance to California, affording, as it does the most satisfactory means to our foreign residents, who may be desirous of bringing their friends to this country, by purchasing tickets of the agent here and sending them to those who may be desirous of emigrating, thus avoiding all risks and delays which might occur through sending remittances. The steamships comprising this line are all first class iron built vessels, commanded by experienced sea captains, and are among the safest and finest steamships which travel the Atlantic ocean, while the rates of fare are lower than by any other line and the accommodation equal in all respects to that afforded by any steamers running. It is therefore, with confidence, that we recommend this line to the public of California and the Pacific Coast, who may be contemplating either a trip to Europe or bringing their friends to this their adopted country, and we trust that Mr. Lewis Schumacher at his office at No 19 Sansome street will have all he can do in preparing the way for emigration to this coast.—S. F. Flag.

HONOLULU NEWS.—Late San Francisco papers have the following from the Sandwich Islands, by the arrival of the Kentucky, which sailed September 3d.

The papers are full of articles on the Chinese leprosy, which is spreading to an alarming extent among the Asiatics on the Islands.

Business is dull at the Islands, owing to the destruction of the whaling fleet by the pirate Shenandoah.

The Gazette says that less than thirty cents per gallon will not cover the costs and charges of shipping molasses to this port; in consequence, the Kentucky brings none among her cargo.

There were only eight vessels in port when the Kentucky left.

A Mrs. A. W. Allen, late of California, was advertised to deliver a lecture, which was considered a remarkable fact by the papers.

The first steam hammer has just been set in operation.

The new steam barrel making machine was waiting for a cargo of lumber from Oregon to commence operations.

ARRAH-NA-POGUE ALL THE TIME.—It appears that Arrah-na-Pogue is something like the Chinese drama; it is never done. A London paper says that it is played simultaneously in three quarters of the globe—in London, Manchester, New York, San Francisco, and Melbourne, Australia. But the difference in time has this singular effect—that Arrah-na-Pogue is played all the day long, for when the great tower scene is reached in Manchester and in London, "Arrah's" cabin door is first opened before her friends in New York, and when the New Yorkers rise from the enjoyment of their play, the San Franciscans sit down to it.

ALLEN'S

LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,

Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION. IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.

Sold by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle.
